The Psychology Club Zurich was founded in 1916 by Emma and Carl Gustav Jung, and some Zurich friends of Complex Psychology, with the financial support of Mr. and Mrs. McCormick-Rockefeller. From the very beginning the clubhouse was probably the most important forum for the psychiatrist C.G. Jung to present his ideas in many seminars and lectures before publishing them. With the Club he wanted to create a space where the inner, and often lonely, work on the soul could find a balance in exchanges with others. To this day, the Club understands itself as a place where colleagues and lay people from all over the world, interested in Analytical Psychology, can mutually exchange their creative work and thoughts.
